

THE WHITECHAPEL OPEN EXHIBITION 1984

This year's Whitechapel Open is more 'open', in one sense, than it has ever been. The closure of the Whitechapel itself, for a major renovation and extension, has given us the opportunity to take the exhibition out of a normal Gallery setting into locations spread across Tower Hamlets.

We hope that one result will be that many who are not in the habit of visiting the Gallery will see the exhibition and that they might in turn be encouraged to visit the Whitechapel when it re-opens in 1985. We expect that another result might well be to ensure that the Open exhibition is never again confined only to the Gallery and look forward to the challenge involved in presenting an exhibition in several venues at the same time.

The Whitechapel is especially grateful to the staff, management committees and trustees of the five institutions that are hosting the exhibition and to the Tower Hamlets arts officers, Peter Conway and Sally Williams, who have collaborated in this extension of our programme.
